THE PRESENTATION

The Dean of the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research asks the candidates for degrees to rise, and presents them with these words:

"Eminent Chancellor and President, on behalf of the Faculties, I present to you these scholars and ask that they be pledged and admitted to the degrees to which they are entitled."

THE PLEDGE

The President, then rising, addresses the candidates in these words:

"Do you promise faithfully to observe and loyally to maintain the statutes, customs, privileges and liberties of this your University? Do you solemnly promise to conduct yourself in all things loyally and faithfully to the honor of your University, the encouragement of learning and the good of your country?"

Each candidate replies: "These things I pledge myself to do."

THE ADMISSION

The Chancellor then addresses the candidates in these words:

"By virtue of the authority vested in me by the Legislature of this Province, and with the consent of this University, I admit you to the degrees to which you are entitled, and invest you with all the powers, rights and privileges pertaining to such degrees, and I charge you to use them for the glory of God and the honor of your country."

Candidates then sit down.

GOWNS, HOODS, AND MORTAR BOARDS

The tradition of academic dress dates back to the early 14th century. Its origins seem to have been mainly ecclesiastical but partly functional. Since the early institutions of higher learning in England were run by and for the members of religious orders, clerical discipline prevailed, and tonsured head and clerical garb were required. However, it is probable that long woolen gowns were considered necessary, in any case, to shield medieval scholars from the dampness and cold of the unheated buildings, and that hoods were used to provide warmth to their shaven heads.

The hoods or cowls of monastic orders, which, in warm weather could be thrown back to fall between the shoulders, were superseded as headdress by the ecclesiastical calotte or skull cap, but were retained as a sort of cape. After the Reformation the clerical skull cap was replaced by the academic "round cap", a circular, velvet bonnet, which is still prescribed for higher degrees by a number of universities. The mortar board, the hard, square cap that is so commonly used as academic headdress today, evolved from the softer, more flexible "square cap" that was introduced in England in about 1490.

So, from these early beginnings a code of academic dress gradually evolved. Colors were introduced in the borders and linings of the hoods to distinguish between degrees in different fields of study, and a variety of patterns of both gowns and hoods was developed to distinguish between different levels of degrees.
